Spring 2004 at the Moraine Valley library.

Frankenstein: Penetrating the Secrets of Nature is a traveling exhibition that encourages audiences to examine the intent of Mary Shelley's novel, Frankenstein, and to discuss Shelley's and their own views about personal and societal responsibility as it relates to science and other areas of life.

The exhibition will be hosted by the Moraine Valley Library. Nine public libraries have partnered with the Moraine Valley Library to host events related to the exhibition presenting the larger community with an opportunity to explore this great novel and the timely issues related to it.
